

PRINCE GEORGE'S COUNTY
HISTORIC SITE SUMMARY SHEET

Survey #: P.G. #87A-20a

Building Date: ca. 1914

Building Name: Site of Milltown Landing

Location: 17700 Milltown Landing Road, Aquasco, Maryland

Description      Public/Residence-Agricultural/Occupied/Good/Inaccessible

The house at Milltown Landing is a two-story frame multi-section house situated on high ground above the Patuxent River. On the lower ground east of the house is a complex of farm buildings. The house itself is cross gabled and basically L-shaped, with modern additions. The main block is three bays by two bays, with entrance in the central bay of the three bay south (main) facade. Sheltering the central entrance is a one-story, one-bay pedimented porch, with frieze and crown molding, supported by Tuscan columns. At the gable ends, the gable roof is clipped, forming a jerkinhead finish. The siding is white aluminum which replaces the original board which was later stuccoed. Extending north from the main block, not quite flush with its west gable end, is an ell wing two bays long. It also has jerkinhead treatment at its north gable end. Partly filling the northeast corner formed by the main block and the ell is a two-story section; wrapping around the north and east of the building is a one-story enclosed porch, with a tall, exterior, modern concrete chimney. The entire building rests on concrete foundations. On the lowlands to the east toward the river is a complex of farm buildings: a board-and-batten gable-roofed stable, chicken coops, two small barns with vertical siding, a long low shed, and a modern silo. At the water's edge, is a gambrel-roofed tobacco barn. At a distance to the southwest, and south of the road, is another complex of farm buildings.

Significance

The site of Milltown Landing now consists of a widely spread out complex of farm buildings, with the handsome dwelling house prominently situated at the end of the road. Once a busy river port, this area is now quiet and remote. Milltown was established by the Act of 1706 as one of the six port towns of Prince George's County, but it never developed into a thriving port town in the way that the other five did. Forty years later, when the other towns were established as tobacco inspection stations, Milltown was not; Milltown Landing remained a quiet and undeveloped agricultural area. Late in the nineteenth century the land at Milltown Landing was being farmed by the Wilson, Connick and Rawlings families, and the Wilsons operated a store near the landing itself. In 1913 Harry B. Leary purchased 310 acres of farmland and began an ambitious building program. He built a new dwelling house, large stable barn and other farm buildings and within the next year had established a large working farm. The dwelling was a handsome L-shaped house distinguished by clipped gable jerkinhead roof treatment, and decorative shingles in the gable ends. The Milltown Landing farm passed out of the Leary family in 1955, and in 1982, most of the acreage was sold to the State of Maryland for the use of the Department of Natural Resources. The farm is reminiscent of an earlier period of agriculture, and is an important landmark in a beautiful natural setting.

Prepare both a summary paragraph and a general description of the resource and its various elements as it exists today.

The house at Milltown Landing is a two-story frame multi-section house situated on high ground at the end of (and on the north side of) Milltown Landing Road above the Patuxent River. On the lower ground east of the house is a complex of farm buildings. The house itself is cross gabled and basically L-shaped, with modern additions. The main block is three bays by two bays, with entrance in the central bay of the three bay south (main) facade. Sheltering the central entrance is a one-story, one-bay pedimented porch, with frieze and crown molding, supported by Tuscan columns. At the gable ends, the gable roof is clipped, forming a jerkinhead finish. The siding is white aluminum which replaces the original board which was later stuccoed. Windows are 6/6 double hung sash (except on the main south facade where they have been replaced by one-pane single-sash windows), and have black louvered aluminum shutters. Cornices are covered with aluminum. The roof is covered with wooden shingle, and a corbelled brick chimney is centered at the ridge. There is a one-story hip-roof enclosed porch at the west gable end, with jalousied windows.

Extending north from the main block, not quite flush with its west gable end, is an ell wing two bays long. It also has jerkinhead treatment at its north gable end, and an interior corbelled brick chimney at that gable end.

Partly filling the northeast corner formed by the main block and the ell is a two-story section with a sunporch at the second story. There are five pairs of four-light vertical strip windows on the east, and three pairs on the north. Wrapping around the north and east of the building is a one-story enclosed porch, originally screened, but now with aluminum siding. It has two picture windows on its east facade, flanking a tall, exterior, modern concrete chimney. The entire building rests on concrete foundations, covered with "bricktex" shingle.

On the lowlands to the east toward the river is a complex of farm buildings: a board-and-batten gable-roofed stable with asphalt shingle roof, chicken coops, two small barns with vertical siding (one gambrel roofed, one gable-roofed), a long low shed, and a modern silo. Farther east, at the water's edge, is a gambrel-roofed tobacco barn.

At a distance to the southwest, and south of the road, is another complex of farm buildings: two tobacco barns sided with wooden shingle; and a two-story gable-roofed tenant house, three bays by two bays, with gable front and returned cornice, now covered with stucco.

Prepare both a summary paragraph of significance and a general statement of history and support.

The site of Milltown Landing (on the Patuxent) now consists of a widely spread out complex of farm buildings, with the handsome dwelling house prominently situated at the end of the road where the ground drops off to the river's edge. Once a busy river port, this area is now quiet and remote, accessible only by Milltown Landing Road.

Milltown was established by the Act of 1706 as one of the six port towns of Prince George's County.<sup>1</sup> It was situated on land belonging to William Mills near the point where Black Swamp Creek flows into the Patuxent River. Milltown apparently never developed into a thriving port town in the way that the other five did. Forty years later, when the other towns were established as tobacco inspection stations, Milltown was not; in its place, at the request of the local populace, Hannah Brown's Landing (Magruder's Landing), approximately a mile up the river, became the tobacco inspection station for that area.<sup>2</sup> Milltown Landing remained a quiet and undeveloped agricultural area.

Late in the nineteenth century the land at Milltown Landing was being farmed by the Wilson, Connick and Rawlings families, and the Wilsons operated a store near the landing itself.<sup>3</sup> In 1906, John R. Tayman purchased 310 acres of land at Milltown Landing, and farmed there while operating his steam threshing machine for other farmers. Tayman sold his farm in 1913 to Harry B. Leary, and moved into Brandywine where he built a new house on the edge of the village (cf. 85A-7).<sup>4</sup> Leary began an ambitious building program; while keeping Tayman's modest dwelling as a tenant house (this may survive today as the stuccoed dwelling which stands southwest of the main complex), he built a new dwelling house, large stable barn and other farm buildings and within the next year had established a large working farm.<sup>5</sup> The dwelling was a handsome L-shaped house distinguished by clipped gable jerkinhead roof treatment, and decorative shingles in the gable ends. There was a one-story Tuscan-columned porch at the south entrance and at the west gable end; the latter is now enclosed. In later years the creosoted board siding was covered with stucco, and more recently with aluminum siding.

#8 Continued

The Milltown Landing farm passed out of the Leary family in 1955, but has continued to the present time to be a private home and working farm. In 1982, most of the acreage was sold to the State of Maryland for the use of the Department of Natural Resources. The farm is reminiscent of an earlier period of agriculture, and is an important landmark in a beautiful natural setting.

DESCRIBE THE PRESENT AND ORIGINAL (IF KNOWN) PHYSICAL APPEARANCE

This is a handsome, working farm-overlooking the Patuxent River at a former Colonial-era landing. The house is a two-story, frame structure, built in several parts. The main section faces south, with a three-bay facade. There is a central door, with a newer, pedimented portico. The jerkin-head roof is covered with wood shingles. To the rear is a wing of styling identical to the main house. There is a large brick chimney on the outside north wall here. There are a large number of nice older farm buildings here, including dairy buildings (rare for this area.)
